

A 12-year-old Indian prodigy, terror of the Grand Masters, star of the Purtichju Open!

The good news is accumulating for this 4th edition of the Purtichju Open. A new star is announced. The young Indian Dhanush Bharadwaj, already Master FIDE, will aim to win the title of International Master. He will already have 2315 elo points in July, which is to say his talent and tremendous potential.

Already Master International he will try to get closer to the title of Grand Master in Purtichju!

Look at what he just did at a recent Blitz tournament in Poland, dominating a lot of Grand Masters and International Masters. It's a good thing, at Purtichju there will be exactly forty players of this caliber. No doubt they will be wary of this child ...

What a beautiful symbol, in any case, for island chess, based precisely on the detection of young talents. Well, our mass is a bit lower than the Indian. As Aruna, the wife of the multiple world champion Vishy Anand, had pointed out, "every day there are as many Indians as there are Corsica!" » ... But who we are!
